How to Steep the Perfect Cup

Water - Always use fresh cold water. The water temperature should be based on the type of tea you are preparing. For black tea, the water should be a rolling boil. For oolong tea, the water should have just reached a boil. And for green or white tea, the water should be just below the boil.

Tea - Always use quality, full leaf tea. Start with one teaspoon of tea for every 6 to 8 ounces of freshly-drawn water. Your taste will eventually determine how much to use. The more leaf, the stronger the flavor.

Time - Over-steeped tea will become bitter, so timing is important. Black and oolong teas steep for 3 to 5 minutes. Green and white teas from 1 to 3 minutes. When ready, decant into another pot, strain as you pour, or if you use an infuser, lift it from the cup or pot and enjoy.
